ALIENS CAPTURE TOP-SECRET NASA MOON BASE!

By PETE THERMOPULOUS, World News

A SUPER-SECRET NASA moon base — code-named Project Prometheus — was recently assaulted and captured by aliens, according to a high-ranking NASA official who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

NASA's little known Alien Threat Response Team, based at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, is holding around-the-clock meetings to craft a counterattack, along with a defense plan, should the aliens decide to launch further attacks against Earth itself.

NASA officials vehemently deny the story, but the agency has been abuzz with the activities on the moon.

"This situation is very troubling and has given the agency a huge black eye, though no one here will ever admit it," says one high-level source in the interplanetary affairs division.

"Whether or not this has happened before, I can't comment. But what I do know is that once news of this becomes public, NASA's future is in serious trouble."

NASA Mission Control technicians in Houston first detected the moon base attack as it occurred just before 5 a.m. Central Daylight Time on May 17.

Two dozen or so aliens swarmed the space colony," says the NASA insider. "We were taken completely by surprise. It was too late."

Prometheus, secretly established in 1999 at an estimated cost of $2 billion, had been testing a top-secret thermonuclear weapon the months when it was captured.

"All of our research and intelligence showed us that the lunar facility was secure," says one American astronaut who space-shuttled down from Project Prometheus just years ago after performing routine maintenance.

"I'm just lucky I wasn't there when this went down. If NASA plans a manned response, I've got some buddies who are in line to go up and clean house."

"They're ready to kick some alien butt, but they're still scared."

An unmanned response may include including Project Prometheus's self-destruct feature.

A NASA source in the audio-video storage division who's seen the images of the aliens says, "They were unlike anything I've seen before.

"The closest I can describe them is they look like plants, like a clump of weeds, but with a giant head surrounded by a cloud of steam."

It is unknown exactly why the aliens attacked the moon base. But they may have been responding to a weapons test that resulted in the evaporation of a large mountain range on the planet Venus.

The extraterrestrials have made no attempt at communicating their demands if they have any.

"I'm not sure we'd understand them even if they did try to communicate," says the high-level interplanetary affairs source.

"What's really on everyone's mind is how this scale will affect future secret weapons testing bases being established throughout the solar system," says the source.

PROJECT PROMETHEUS moon base, (inset) located on the lunar surface, has cost a whopping 32 million dollars — and now it's been overrun by invading extraterrestrials.

Man dying to see gal – almost does

LOVESICK Igor Stojiljkovic was dying to see his girlfriend. And he almost did die when he leaped in the sea to swim to her.

The smitten Serb, who lives in the port of Bar in Montenegro, wanted to see his gal in Milan, Italy. But he couldn't afford a ferry for the 85-mile trip across the Adriatic Sea.

So he jumped in and decided to swim the whole way.

Dejovic saw the struggling swimmer, and sent a boat to pluck him from the icy water.

"He was sinking," Dejovic said. "He had hypothermia, and it was touch-and-go for a while."

"Igor told us he desperately wanted to see his girlfriend Rada, who lives in Milan," Dejovic said. "We couldn't believe anyone could be so stupid, so we called his girl-

WHY POLITICIANS SUCK THEIR THUMBS

They do it to relieve stress, say experts

PSYCHIATRIST Dr Terry Ebel

A prominent national health care expert has issued a controversial report urging politicians to suck their thumbs and carry blankets to improve their job performance.

Babies suck their thumbs and — like the Peanuts cartoon character Linus — use soft, fuzzy blankets to gain a sense of security and psychiatrist Dr Terry Ebel says that reverting to an infantile behavior can benefit politicians who experience periods of deep insecurity, especially during election seasons and times of national turmoil and economic turmoil.

SENATE Minority leader Tom Daschle has reportedly sucked his thumb during heated debates.

"Many politicians are babies, anyway," says Dr Ebel. "And by nurturing their 'inner infant' this gives them the focus and security they need to make big decisions such as voting to raise their own salaries and pushing for wasteful pork barrel projects in their districts."

Capitol Hill insiders report that Dr Ebel's recommendations, which were based on a study of 50 politicians ranging from small town mayors to members of the U.S. House and Senate, are being taken to heart.

"President Bush himself has led the way," states one political observer on the condition of anonymity. "Since 9-11 he's had his thumb jammed up to the knuckle in cabinet meetings and even during some personal times. I have it on highest authority that the pretzel choking incident was caused when he was sucking his thumb and tried to jam pretzels in without removing it first."

Others reverting to infantile behavior in order to focus on the big decisions include Attorney General John Ashcroft, who reportedly THUMB-SUCKING Democrats hoped Al Gore delayed a fund-raiser in order to overcome his "blankie," say sources.

TOP THUMB: President Bush has had his thumb jammed up to his knuckle since 9-11 according to aides.

uses to voice the latest threats of a large, unstoppable female visitor to the department's Great Hall.

"We've known for a long time that people prefer the soft, warm and fuzzy because it reminds them of the comfort they felt through a mother's breast, or by drinking from a bottle. We feel secure by experiencing a sucking, nourishing sensation.

The problem is that we think just because we grow up physically, we no longer have those feelings of insecurity.

"So Attorney General Ashcroft's discomfort with the glass breasts point out, that couldn't be further from the truth."

The thumb sucking isn't restricted to prominent Republicans. An unnamed spokesman for Al Gore said that his appearance at a national Democratic $10,000 a plate fund raiser was delayed by nearly 30 minutes as aides searched high and low for his filthy, but soothing rag, which got him "thinkie."

Senate Majority Leader, Tom Daschle of South Dakota has also joined in the spirit of bipartisan thumb sucking. He was reportedly photographed sucking away during a recessed debate on the Senate

NEW HELMET LETS BLIND FOLKS DRIVE

. . . but there are a few bugs in it!

ON-GOING REFINEMENTS will increase computer response to exceed the currently recommended 25-m.p.h. speed limit.

THE DRAWBACK to the new device is drivers are putt-putting along like 90-year-olds and are causing many accidents.

A computerized helmet allowing the blind to drive is causing a major controversy and many collisions because the helmet-wearers drive like 90-year-old retirees!

BY PETE THERMOPULOUS

The "Cyclopse" helmet and its slow poke blind users have been blamed for numerous traffic accidents in and around Stockholm, Sweden, including a large tractor-trailer collision that resulted in several serious injuries and the deaths of an estimated 400 chickens.

Forty-three blind and vision-impaired drivers are currently using the helmet, which uses "stereo optic" technology to read the road ahead and broadcast instant directions and instructions to the driver. Prices range from $4,500 for a basic "Nobility" model to $12,000 for the high-end "Renegade" headgear. Optional driving lessons are another $1,500.

Swedish Minister of Traffic Sanna Wigleton, "including two dozen accidents and numerous rush hour traffic jams. When someone is driving 20 m.p.h. in a 55 m.p.h. zone, it causes severe problems. I hate to sound cruel, but these people simply cannot drive."

NEW stereo-optic technology gives driver instant directions and instructions.

Lars Bjorklund, director of research and development for Advanced Helmet Technologies Corp., which developed the helmet, defended the device. "While it works quite well, we don't recommend a blind driver exceed 25 miles per hour."

Users say they are delighted with their new freedom, no matter how slow they have to go.

Is YOUR hometown on Osama's hit list?

REVEALED: TARGETS!

REVENGE-CRAZED terrorists have vowed to destroy 25 American targets on or before the Fourth of July with an arsenal of weapons that includes nuclear bombs and smallpox, horrified sources say. The danger is so real — and so imminent — that worried experts have pinpointed potential strike zones on a map that reveals the magnitude of the terror threat in chilling detail.

Baseball stadiums, day care centers, national monuments, malls, federal offices, college campuses, apartment buildings, nuclear power plants, airports, water reservoirs and dams in 25 states all reportedly are at risk.

President George Bush, Vice President Dick Cheney, Secretary of State Colin Powell, FBI chief Robert Mueller and Homeland Security Director Tom Ridge are downplaying these "very direct and specific threats" to avoid national panic.

But as they have freely admitted in a series of frightening public statements, citizens should be bracing for strikes with a staggering arsenal of weapons ranging from plastic explosives and suicide bombers to hijacked airplanes, cruise-tipped missiles and "dirty bombs," smallpox and nerve gas.

And the President and his team have been making no bones of the fact that as the war on terror continues, national monuments will fall — and millions of Americans could die.

"Take your worst terror nightmare and multiply it by a factor of 25, and then you'll begin to see the magnitude of the problem we're facing," a respected terror expert told reporters here in the nation's capital.

"Nobody ever thought that the attacks on the Twin Towers and the Pentagon would be the last we would hear from Osama Bin Laden's Al Qaeda terrorists and other groups, like the Islamic Jihad.

"But these new threats go beyond anything that anybody had dared to imagine. There are skeptics, of course, and they've argued that the potential strikes which we've mapped may be nothing more than 'decoy targets' floated by terrorists to divert our attention from true targets.

"I wish I could say that were true. But the list is based on terrorist 'chatter' and solid intelligence we've been hearing for months, which increases the probability of accuracy to a significant degree."

Another terror expert agrees: "It simply isn't open to argument — for our own safety and well-being, we'd be fools not to consider this map of potential targets to be accurate.

"Bin Laden, Al Qaeda and the Islamic Jihad have been mocking our ability and our resolve to defend ourselves from the beginning," adds the source. "It's as if they are saying, 'We'll attack and attack and attack and there's not a damn thing you can do to stop us.'

"It's like that famous baseball story about Babe Ruth telling everybody he would take two strikes at home plate and then hit a home run over the flagpole at center field. And then, he did it.

"These terror threats are a slap in the face to all Americans. But Bin Laden and his cronies are right about one thing. Aside from increasing security, we can't stop them — all we can do is hope and pray for the best.

"A communicable disease like smallpox could rip through the country killing millions in a few weeks. A nuclear strike could vaporize millions in an instant.

"And we've already seen what happens when you fly an airplane into a skyscraper, both in terms of immediate, catastrophic damage and also in long-term devastation to the national psyche.

"My advice? Prepare for the worst. As one of my colleagues put it, 'Get ready for Hell on Earth.' There are indications we're looking at 25 strikes at any moment leading up to the our greatest and most symbolic holiday, the Fourth of July."

Here is a list of potential strike zones. Although specific cities and regions are pinpointed, the precise sites are not. It also is unclear which weapon or weapons will be used in any given place.

Prepare for the WORST as madmen take aim at the U.S.

1. San Francisco. The Golden Gate Bridge was thought to have been at risk of attack as early as last November, and sources say "it's a high risk area."

2. New York City. The Big Apple has been on high alert since the terror attacks of 9-11. Nothing, say sources, has changed.

3. Chicago. A population center with numerous high-profile landmarks. It's a sure bet.

4. Atlanta. The unofficial "Capital of the New South" — an obvious choice for attack.

5., 6., 7. Miami, Orlando, Tampa. Florida has long been considered a hotbed of clandestine terrorist activity. Says one source: "It's crawling with these creeps."

8. Trenton, N.J. Letters containing anthrax were mailed from the city last fall, indicating a significant terrorist presence.

9. Cleveland. Often joked about as a "dull city," Cleveland "is very much in the crosshairs," sources say.

10. Memphis. Elvis Presley Dead here — now terrorists have their eyes on it.

11. Dallas. The nerve center of America's domestic oil industry in densely populated and an important financial center.

12. Washington, D.C. The seat of American government is peppered with two many prospective targets to list.

13. Seattle. This far-flung city at the northwestermost tip of the contiguous U.S. is a sitting duck target from an offshore enemy — or one that crosses the border from Canada.

14. Los Angeles. Here's another population center with a high-profile industry — show business.

15. Detroit. Hitting this industrial giant would cripple the American economy.

16., 17. Las Vegas. Atlantic City. As gambling centers, these cities might be considered important as symbols of American "godlessness."

18. St. Louis. Cities scattered throughout America's heartland are considered to be symbolically important.

19. Boston. Not only is the town historically important, the Super Bowl champion New England Patriots play nearby.

20. Philadelphia. National treasures such as the Liberty Bell would seem to be obvious targets.

21. New Orleans. As a party town it's yet another symbol of American wealth and excess.

22. Birmingham, Ala. Destroying this Bible Belt city will prove Islam's superiority over Christianity, at least to fanatics.

23. Springfield, Ill. America's greatest president, Abraham Lincoln, was born here. It has to go.

24. Niagara Falls. Its symbolic value as a bridge of friendship between America and Canada, and its millions of visitors, make this area a prime target.

25. South Dakota. With the right weapon, terrorists will vaporize America's biggest monument — Mt. Rushmore.

DOG CAN TALK

— just like Scooby-Doo!

BANDIT is a fast-talking canine who, like Scooby-Doo, starts most of his words with the letter "R", has a few choice words about leash laws, pooper scoopers and free-roaming cats.

By HELEN BAUM World News Today

A 2-YEAR-OLD GREAT DANE is astounding his master and a kennel full of animal experts — by talking!

And Bandit the straight-talking pooch — who sounds just like cartoon canine Scooby-Doo — is spilling his guts about everything from chew toys to chow with a few choice words about leash laws, pooper scoopers and free-roaming cats.

"Rats rink" — "Cats stink" — asserts Bandit, who, like Scooby-Doo, starts most words with the letter "R."

That he is heard himself.

Veterinary scientists are skeptical about the double-barreling dog, but stop short of dismissing the claim — and at least one research institution is making plans to examine the captivating canine.

The Great Dane "just started talking" about a month ago, said human pal Bob Fennessey, a 25-year-old plumber's assistant from Calgary in Alberta, Canada. He said he and Bandit were watching Scooby-Doo, Where Are You," the TV cartoon that has delighted both kids and adults for more than 30 years. Bob has every episode on tape, and spends much of his free time watching the show about the crime-fighting canine and his hippie pal, Shaggy.

"It was like — bar-out, man!" Bob gushed. "One day I was watching Scooby-Doo, and Bandit was lying there on the floor in front of the TV just like always. Then all of a sudden, I hear this deep, booming voice — Bob's voice!"

It was Bandit saying "Let's go out," revealed still-stunned Bob.

The giddy Great Dane said he didn't know what made him blurt out the request, but he'd been feeling "cramped up" — cramped up — and decided to use his new powers of speech to keep from going berserk.

DOG OWNER Bob Fennessey

"And I said new food," he demanded, "not this cheap junk!"

Bandit blamed growing canine complaints on a number of other areas — especially leash laws. The dog wants to be walked when cats can roam free. "Rats people rather watch out."

But Bandit's mood lightened when asked about "pooper scooper" laws requiring owners to pick up after their dogs during walks.

"Bob rikes rink!" he guffawed, thrusting one leg paw in front of his muzzle as he tried to cover a belly laugh.

A spokesman for the Canadian Academy of Veterinary Research said the Academy plans to send a researcher to Calgary to examine Bandit.

"Some veterinary scientists have expressed doubts about this," said a spokesman for the Academy. "But we're not quite ready to dismiss it.

"Animals can communicate as many as 16 specific messages," he continued, "and they are able to recognize a number of English words when spoken by their human companions.

"Bandit could have picked up the language from his constant exposure to Scooby — and began speaking due to his natural desire to please his master."

Nonetheless, Bandit's speaking ability has brought Bob and Bandit much closer together. Bob has agreed to take more walks and play more games of Fetch.

And Bandit says he'll stop digging up the yard and chewing up the pillow table.

Drunk driver busted — on a lawn mower!

BOOZING and cruising got Michael Kocur busted for drunk driving — even though the vehicle he was driving was a lawn mower.

Kocur was arrested when he rode the mower on the side of the road to pick up trash, cops told a judge in Cayuga County, Upstate New York.

He was charged with drunk driving — but only his first offense on a lawn mower.

But mower-man Michael protested his innocence. "I quit drinking whiskey," he pleaded with the judge, "and I only drink on weekends. I was just picking up litter. I didn't know what I was doing was wrong."

The judge ordered him to spend

CANNIBAL CHEF'S FAVORITE RECIPES

. . . prepared with REAL human meat!

The latest craze in creative cuisine comes courtesy of Papua New Guinea where celebrity cannibal chef Liva Kabok has published an updated edition of The Cannibal Cookbook: Low Cal Meals to Die For.

Kabok has made a name for himself on Micronesia's satellite Food Channel with his weekly TV show, Serving Fellow Man and is in frequent demand in his homeland, as well as Australia and New Zealand as a host for celebrity roasts.

His low-priced book ("It won't cost you an arm and a leg," he cracks) was motivated out of concern for the health of his people for whom he says, "The idea of an all-you-can-eat eatery is two waiters and a hearse."

"Our traditional cannibal cuisine is killing us," says Kabok. "A diet of high calorie, foreign, fatty salty missionaries, anthropologists and Peace Corps workers is contributing to premature deaths, high blood pressure, strokes and heart attacks among our people.

"I've created tasty, heart healthy meals — lean finger foods for example — that satisfy hunger pains and won't clog your arteries with someone else's cholesterol."

Kabok, 34, spent years researching his cookbook, relying on the traditional tasty tales and tips of tribal elders and his 21st century fondness for modern cooking and awareness of dietary no-no's that contribute to weight and health problems.

The result is a global smorgasbord with a human touch. His favorite dishes include: Irish stew ("with real Irish Catholic priests"), Hungarian goulash, French fries and Danish pastries "with a tasty bi-cal filling I call 'Sweet Sam.'

"These meals are designed to fill you up without filling you out," says Kabok, who admits his own weight problems were another motivation for his research. "I weighed as much as two hefty German supersisters at one time, now I'm down to a svelte 153 pounds — about the size of the Swedish UNESCO worker who disappeared near my village in July of last year.

"Low-calorie substitutes include light cooking oils and butter substitutes instead of human fat, using the lean portions and limiting healthy ingredients such as fresh vegetables, tofu and other soy products with the flesh," says Kabok. "It tastes like chicken or the 'other white meat' but with half the calories!"

Here are some selected recipes:

Irish stew

(Serves 5-6)
1 Irish Catholic missionary (140 lbs. or less)
INGREDIENTS:
1 thigh (deboned)

Chef Liva Kabok, author of The Cannibal Cookbook:

2 kidneys
4 cups missionary broth
3 med. potatoes — peeled and cubed
½ tsp. salt (or two tsp. missionary sweat, for low-salt diets).
½ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. pineal gland (finely chopped)
½ tsp. thyme (crushed)
1 12-oz. pkg. frozen peas — partially thawed
6 tbsp. flour
6 cups cold blood
2 carrots (sliced)

PREPARATION:

MISSIONARY BROTH:

Bring vest, rear and fingers to a boil in 10 cups of water; cover pot, reduce heat and simmer for 3 hours. Remove cover and reduce to 4 cups.

STEW:

Remove thigh, debone and cut into 2-inch cubes. (For those on a low-fat diet, parboil thigh before cubing.) Lightly brown thigh meat and sliced kidneys in a deep pot. Add missionary broth, onions, spices and seasonings. Lower heat, and allow to cook covered approximately 3 hours — or until meat is tender. Add frozen peas.

Add flour to cold blood, stir until lumps are dissolved and add to stew.

Add wood to fire and cook 15–20 minutes and serve.

Hungarian Goulash

(Serves 6)

INGREDIENTS:

2 lbs. round steak taken from physically fit Hungarian tourist or anthropologist, cut in ½-inch cubes
1 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1 medium meat, sliced (may substitute two ears, if meat is unavailable)
3 tbsp. flour
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. paprika
¼ tsp. dried lung, crushed
1 (14 oz.) can tomatoes
1 cup sour cream
1 cup pureed brains
2 lbs. egg noodles
2 tsp. low-fat lung butter

PREPARATION:

Put Hungarian steak cubes, onion, garlic in cooking pot. Stir in flour and stir to coat floaty cubes. Add all remaining ingredients except sour cream and brains. Stir well.

Cover and cook over low fire 8–10 hours. Add sour cream and pureed brains 30 minutes before serving, and stir in thoroughly. Serve over hot, buttered egg noodles.

Italian "Piece-a"

(Serves 8)

place-a this, a piece-a that . . . with the right Italian phrase, it makes perfect pizza!"

INGREDIENTS:

1 large Italian bread shell or prepared pizza crust, 12 inches
1 lb. lean, ground beef from two areas of an Italian UN worker or eco-tourist
½ cup ground lamyra
½ cup boiled basil weevil
4 cups whole plum tomatoes
3 cup sliced fingers, toes
1 cup sliced lips — upper and lower
1 tbsp. Hazel's Up All-Purpose Seasoning
2 cups shredded mozzarella cheese

PREPARATION:

Heat stove oven to 425 degrees. In large skillet, brown ground Italian beef over medium heat 8 to 10 minutes or until no longer pink, stirring occasionally. Pour off fat drippings.

Stir in lamyra, sliced lips, boiled basil weevil, and Hazel's Up Seasoning. Heat thoroughly.

Place pizza shell on large aluminum leaf sheet. Top evenly with lamyra beef mixture, tomato sauce, sliced fingers/toes, sprinkle with mozzarella. Bake 12 to 15 minutes or until cheese is melted; cut into 8 wedges.

WACKY TALKING BIBLE WON'T SHUT UP

FORGET EVERYTHING you know about the Bible. A dishy new talking Holy Book is revealing secrets the Big Guy never wanted written down.

Jack Markowitz of [C&U Publishing has been making talking books for the blind for nearly 10 years. "I finally decided it was time to tackle the biggest book of all," Markowitz says from his office in Warsaw, Poland. "If only I'd known what I was in for."

When Markowitz first listened to his company's Read-To-Me Bible, he was amazed to hear it adding juicy details left out of the original text. After checking with the narrator, who forcefully denied adding his own comments to the sacred text, Markowitz contacted biblical scholars, who confirmed the authenticity of the previously unheard passages, which they believe were excised from early drafts of the Good Book thousands of years ago!

Among the revelations:

- Eve was merely one of Adam's six wives -- and he was just one of her 14 husbands!
- How Moses really parted the Red Sea — with his bad breath!
- The secret to eternal life: Figs!
- Jesus wasn't God's only son — just the one he supported financially!
- The Garden of Eden was located on the site of what's now a steak house in Oregon!
- The Eleventh Commandment — Thou Shalt Not Solicit!
- Moses wandered for 40 years because he was too proud to ask directions!

Markowitz believes that the shocking scoops come courtesy of the souls of departed gossip columnists in Heaven.

"The Bible they have up there must be more complete than the one we've got on Earth," he says. "And there are some biblical blabbermouths who want to share God's dirty little secrets."

Naturally, sales of the stubby Bible have been heavenly with outraged Christians eating them up like Dumb idea blows man's face off!

A PARTY PRANKSTER decided to show off by taking a bite out of a blasting cap — which blew half his face off.

"I just can't imagine anyone doing something like that," marveled West Virginia State Police Cpl. M.J. Payne, after rescuers rushed the blown away guest to the hospital.

He revealed that Jerry Stroinyee, 24, was at a party where everyone was trying to explode a blasting cap in an aquarium — but nothing was happening. So bartender Jerry decided to show how to set it off.

"He put it in his mouth and bit down," Payne revealed. "It blew all his teeth out, his tongue and his lips."

Incredibly, Jerry survived — but with massive facial injuries that required care in the hospital.

Hospital ripoff leaves intruder burned to a crisp

A THIEF ripped off a hospital and lived to tell — he gave himself permanent burns by using what he mistakenly thought was a suntan machine.

"He'll be scarred for life," said a doctor who treated the crispy crook.

Cops said the man sneaked into Odstock Hospital in Wiltshire, England. First he helped himself to some electronic plastic. Then he saw a UV-ray bed — or what he thought was a suntan bed.

He decided he deserved a quick suntan," cops wrote about their official report.

But it wasn't a tanning bed — it was a special ultraviolet light machine for burn victims, and it was supposed to be used for more than 10 seconds. The thief lay in it for 45 minutes — 300 times the allowed dosage!

Drowned in blisters and in agonizing pain, he went to another hospital for treatment. Doctors and nurses got suspicious because he was wearing a pitch-black wig.

MURDERED SISTERS

Ghosts won't rest until their killers are found & punished, say psychics!

THE unsolved [redacted] sisters who were tortured and slain on their way to an Elvis Presley movie in 1956 are at the core of one of Chicago's most enduring hauntings.

Dozens of rock-and-roll entertainers claim to have seen the naked, blue-tinged specters of Barbara Grimes, 13, and her 13-year-old sister, Patricia, walking hand in hand on the lonely suburban road where their frozen bodies were found in a ditch 48 long years ago.

Eyewitnesses also are on record as having heard bloodcurdling screams, the ghostly slamming of car doors and the sudden accelerating roar of cars when there are no vehicles in sight.

And psychics are convinced the hauntings will continue until the tragic sisters' killers have been identified and brought to justice.

By CLIFF LINEDECKER
Weekly World News

Barbara and Patricia were enjoying Christmas vacation when they turned out of their Southside Chicago home on Dec. 28, 1956, to go see Love Me Tender for the 11th time.

Around midnight their worried mother notified police that the girls were late getting home. A city-wide alert was issued, touching off a massive investigation that would lead to the questioning of 100,000 people over more than a decade.

The King of Rock 'n' Roll himself got involved in the desperate search.

Thinking his young fans might have run away from home, he issued a public plea: "If you are good kids you'll go home and ease your mother's worries."

The girls didn't respond — but cops got a flurry of conflicting responses from their friends and classmates.

Some claimed to have seen strange men force Barbara and Patricia into a car. Others insisted the girls ran off with sailors from the nearby Great Lakes Naval Training Center.

Police also listened intently to a young psychic who said he had dreamed about the missing sisters. In the dream, two naked bodies "that looked like store mannequins" were lying in a field near some trees and a tiny creek, he said.

Incredibly, the psychic's eerie vision proved to be right on the money.

On Jan. 31, 1957, a motorist was driving on Germantown Church Road near the DuPage and Cook County line when he spotted the nude and frozen bodies of the Grimes sisters.

Ominously, the visit elsewhere while occupants

Elvis himself got involved in the girls' search

Daring crook used a getaway BIKE!

ATHLETIC Thomas Justice could have been an Olympic bicyclist, but he used his pedal power for something far more daring — robbing banks!

The FBI says Justice robbed 20 banks from San Francisco to Chicago — making his getaways on a custom-made, $2,000 racing bike.

The 31-year-old Olympic hopeful got tagged as "The Choirboy Bandit" for the way he bundled himself and kept his hands clasped in front of him — like a choirboy — to escape detection by security cameras and leave no fingerprints.

His fancy wheels are what finally brought Justice to justice. Two fellow cyclists pointed him were found along the edge of Devil's Creek, near an abandoned house filled with satanic graffiti, candle drippings and animal bones.

A pathologist who examined the bodies concluded the sisters died from exposure to Chicago's fierce winter weather.

But after a coroner's jury was convened, shocking reports circulated indicating the girls had been sexually abused and beaten.

One report indicated that a chunk of Barbara's thigh had been hacked away.

Another noted that Patricia's lips had been sliced off and that she had been stabbed repeatedly in the chest.

Psychic Florence Drennon, who investigated the case and visited the site a few years ago, said the dreadful shades of the cruelly abused teenagers have been condemned to continue their lonely wanderings along the remote suburban road on cold winter nights until their murders are solved and the killers identified.

The first sighting of the beautiful phantoms occurred on a chilly winter evening in January 1987 while the Windy City marked the first anniversary of the murders.

A woman told cops she had seen the naked bodies of two girls lying in a ditch beside Germantown Church Road.

Cops investigated but found no trace of the bodies, no impressions left in the snow-covered ditch and no footprints.

Almost every year since then, sightings of the ghostly Elvis fans have been reported, usually in late December or early January — the anniversary of the

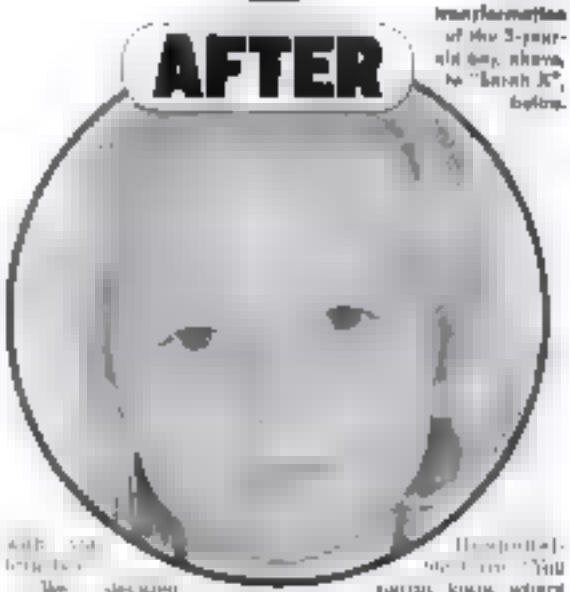
MOM HAS SON'S SEX CHANGED

'I really wanted a girl,' says gal!



THESE photos show the transformation of the 5-year-old boy, shown as "Sarah X", below.

DOCTORS have performed a sex-change operation on the youngest patient ever to get the procedure — a 5-year-old boy who's now a girl!

And the shocking surgery was not performed out of medical necessity. Incredibly, the kid's mother says she just "got sick of raising a boy" — and decided a transsexual tot could be the daughter she'd always wanted!

"I really wanted a girl," said the misguided mom. "Boys are messy and noisy, and all they want to do is hit each other and spit and make rude noises. I always wanted a pretty little girl that I could dress up in pink and have tea parties with and watch her dance ballet."

"For awhile I thought I could just take care of it myself. I signed him up for dance class, and by the time he was 4 he had the prettiest strawberry-blonde hair — I curled it myself.

"Then one day my husband came home early and walked in on us playing together, and he just blew up and said I was 'turning our son into a girl.' So that's how I got the idea — why can just go ahead and change him.

DR. WILLIAM WESTERLEIGH defends his decision to do the surgery.

"Monday after my husband went to work we'd have a tea party and paint each other's toenails.

"Then one day my husband came home early and walked in on us playing together, and he just blew up and said I was 'turning our son into a girl.' So that's how I got the idea — why can just go ahead and change him.

the sex change family's identity to protect their privacy. They would identify the gender bent tyke only as Sarah X, and said she underwent the successful 12 hour procedure at a hospital in Toronto, Canada.

"The child's mother came to us insisting that her child was a little girl trapped in a little boy's body," said Dr William Westerleigh, the attending physician.

"When we began the sex-change procedure on adults we first make them live as the opposite sex for a period of time in order to help them and their loved ones adjust gradually. And we realized that [illegible] "You never know when to begin in condemning this," fumed a PFRC spokesman.

"This is going to upset the Boodgale or Deighter kids — if you decide you don't like how your kids were born, just send 'em out for alterations!"

He called Sarah's mother "a poor excuse for a parent" and said that the PFRC "is already looking into sanctioning Dr Westerleigh for agreeing to this horrific procedure."

Dr Westerleigh said he firmly stands by his decision to do the surgery. Sarah's mother also dismissed the critics.

"Before they get on their high horse," she snuffed, "maybe they should try using a toilet seat after a 5 year old [illegible] We decided that we'd probably be doing him a favor by just finishing what she'd started -- possibly saving him years of therapy as adulthood."

Dr Westerleigh said Sarah will probably have to undergo hormone therapy for the rest of her life, and will not be able to bear children naturally.

"That's OK," Sarah's mom said. "She can adopt. Having kids just makes you fat, anyway."

Sarah's father could not be reached for a comment. Sources said he quit from the family after being unable to talk his wife out of the procedure.

The oddball operation has brought a storm of criticism from outraged groups.

Hubby's dead – & still won't leave me alone!

Dear Serena: My husband died a couple of months ago in a car accident. We were getting divorced before the accident because I just couldn't take his abuse any more. And now that he's gone, he still won't let up.

Almost every night I wake up shaking and he's there standing at the foot of my bed, as plain as day. I keep telling myself that it's just my imagination, but there he is, staring at me with dark clouded eyes like he hasn't slept in weeks.

Once I even turned on the light and he was still there. But started fading. It's really creepy and keeping me from getting a decent night's sleep. Why won't he stop haunting me and just leave me alone? — Scared Stiff in Pine Bluff

Dear Scared: That is undead the vengeful ghost of your late husband that has been visiting you. She'd cum pet over and will appreciate teaching you something about the finer things in life.

Dear Miffed: Please, let it go. Release your husband from his promise and let go of the bitterness concerning his stepsister. He doesn't want those reminders of his mother in your home, and the idea of you in his mother's clothing disturbs him. Can you blame him?

Dear Serena: My wife and I live on a fixed income and recently our stove rusted out. Because of our financial situation, we bought a used one advertised in our local classified ads. It was almost brand new and the price was very low. The man who sold it to us has moved since we bought it, so we can't get our money back. Could our stove be haunted or possessed? Please don't put this letter on your back burner! — Afraid to Cook in Kearny

BADMINTON COACH FIRED FOR USING REAL BIRDIES!

SOMETHING'S rotten in Denmark — a pile of dead birds that were killed by high school girls in the name of team spirit.

Girls' badminton coach Ulrik Hans Gronda has decision to use live birds in badminton practice to get his team more dedicated to the sport.

"I wanted to spice up the game a little ... plus the girls needed a way to get psyched up for our matches.

"My girls are the best there is and I expected to give them an edge. I can't believe the opposition even has a team to play."

The coach also says that the loss of birds used were a small price to pay to motivate his team.

"We were gearing up to play our biggest rival, the Copenhagen Blue Jays, and I realized up against real tough players, so I made a decision to practice to get the team psyched up."

When Coach Hans' actions were found out by school officials he was immediately suspended without pay.

"We in the Brondby Region of Denmark certainly hope the kids can get back to an [illegible] to death just to inspire their team," said a concerned member of the school board.

Another school official states that "we simply can't tolerate that kind of behavior. He should have had a heart and used some bird people don't like — like pigeons or something."

"Danish people are known for their creative cuisine thing," says Erik Jutland noted Danish historian. "They revolutionized the pastry industry and have made great scientific progress in the field of medicine. Sex change operations might not even exist if it wasn't for Denmark."

Still, the use of live birds in high school sports is not condoned, even by progressive Danes. "It's the straw that broke the camel's back. [illegible] have to swing every [illegible] they go to."

Since Coach Hans' release from duty, school officials have substituted another teacher at the school from the history department named Jolsson Gonde who [illegible] absolutely love spending extra time with the students, Gonde said.

But so far Gonde hasn't gotten off to a good start when it comes to winning. "We're getting there. The girls are coming around. Slowly but [illegible] up and let us play," said one student. Other players are quick to agree.

"If we don't get a new coach soon I'm going to quit. I can't stand his constant pep talks and well-wishing — I'm out there to kick butt on the

Don't Buy a Big Tiller

For a Small Job!

If your garden is an acre or more, you may want to buy a big tiller. If it's any less, you should buy a Mantis Tiller/Cultivator. Big tillers till and weed 20" or more wide. The Mantis Tiller/Cultivator tills and weeds a practical 9" wide.

Big tillers weigh almost 300 lbs. The Mantis tiller weighs just 20 lbs! Even turning a 300 lb. tiller in a backyard garden without running over crops (or yourself!) is a challenge.

Costs Hundreds Less!

Most big tillers were designed to just till. But many now offer clumsy "add-on" attachments to cultivate and finish their work. The Mantis Tiller/Cultivator was designed from the beginning to precisely match a small, powerful engine to a variety of useful attachments for your yard and garden. Tiller. Cultivator. Furrower. Edger. Lawn Aerator. Lawn Dethatcher. Hedge Trimmer.

Most big tillers cost an arm and a leg. Despite the fact that the Mantis Tiller is a tough, durable professional instrument, it costs a fraction of what you'll pay for a big tiller.

Look at the Warranty.

Most machines are partially covered for 90 days or a year. The Mantis Tiller/Cultivator's patented tines are guaranteed forever against breakage. If they ever break, return the broken tine to us for a replacement. The tiller unit is guaranteed for two years from the date of purchase, against defects in manufacture and workmanship.

If we didn't make such a fine machine, we couldn't make such a fine offer.

- Easily weeds an average garden in 30 minutes.
- Does so many jobs...from lawn care to weeding...and more!
- Women and senior gardeners love the Mantis Tiller/Cultivator.
- Early order bonus (if you hurry!)
- Patented tines guaranteed forever against breakage.
- Fun to use! The Mantis Tiller/Cultivator is so much fun to use, gardeners everywhere love their Mantis Tillers.

The Mantis Promise

Try any product that you buy directly from Mantis with NO RISK! If you're not completely satisfied, send it back to us within one year for a complete, no-hassle refund.

JAPAN WANTS TO BUY HAWAII

. . . and turn our 50th state into a WW2 theme park!

By JUSTIN MITCHELL

JAPANESE BUSINESSMEN want to buy Hawaii and turn the entire island into a giant resort and amusement park featuring luxury hotels, world-class golf and spas — past rides based on the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor!

And while Bush administration insiders say the President fully intends to nip the lunatic scheme in the bud, some Capitol Hill insiders say that's not good enough. They want an official apology from Prime Minister [illegible] for his right-wing nationalist and the Japanese government.

Child genius builds robot — to be his brother!

MICHAEL WILLIAMS and his robot brother

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand — Twelve-year-old Michael Williams Jr. says he built a brother because he needed someone to play with.

By KIP LEWIS
Weekly World News

"Mikey always builds things from junk around the house," says his father Michael Sr. "I'm a bank executive. His mother is in mutual funds. We're very busy and more children is not a viable option at this point in time."

"I got tired of using a bag of trash as a goalie when I was playing soccer," says Michael Jr. "And there aren't any other kids on my street to play with.

"But he can really give the ball a boot, for a robot."

Mikey built Buster from scrap metal, cans and discarded Christmas light wiring. Buster's sensors and motor skill functions are powered by 37 AA batteries Michael scavenged from old toys. While Buster performs like a well-oiled machine, Michael Jr. has noted a glitch in his cyborg sibling sidekick. "When Buster makes a save, his nose lights up. I need to check the circuits."

Mrs. Williams, who was away on a business trip to Sydney, Australia, when Michael Jr. began his project, is also impressed with her son's creation. "I'm very proud of Mikey," she says. "He's very clever and very loving. I'm glad he has a brother to play with now."

Mikey's parents say they're not sure what will become of Buster when Michael Jr. grows up. "Maybe he'll go to college with Mikey," says Michael Sr. "Or maybe he'll get a job and help pay for his own upkeep. I'm not sure how that would work, but I'm sure we'll figure it out."

Michael Jr. says he's not sure what he'll ultimately do with Buster, but he's thinking about charging his friends three cents admission to see him. "I'm going to have to pay a second allowance," he says.

Michael Jr. is not sure what he'll ultimately do with Buster and says, "I'll think of something."

LOLA CHEVALIER breastfed her daughter until the kid was 5 years old — now the crazy lady's nursing the family's Labrador retriever!

"My husband thinks I'm a nut," Lola confides. "And I have to say even my friends are a little put off.

But the jaw-dropping photographs Lola took of Ella with her baby's new playmate have left no doubt in anyone's mind that the 32-year-old Canadian mom is a nutcase.

Lola had just stopped breastfeeding her youngest child, 5-year-old Catherine, because the youngster was old enough to understand that the supply of "mommy juice" was limited.

The founder of the Lactivist group that promotes breastfeeding in her hometown of Sprimont, Belgium, she is one of a handful of women who practice cross-species nursing.

Lola's decision to breastfeed a 2-month-old puppy was met with [illegible]

Bees unleashed on school — in a prank

A MISCHIEVOUS student pulled the ultimate sting operation when [illegible] 50,000 honey bees at [illegible] high school!

Deland High School in Daytona Beach, Fla., had to be evacuated as the giant swarm roamed the school grounds.

Authorities have no idea who planted eight wooden bee boxes, complete with hives, in stairwells and behind bushes at the school just days before the rest of classes but school officials said it appears to be a senior prank.

Bug experts from a local wholesale honey business — from which it is believed the bees were "borrowed" — were quickly able to haul the insects, which stung only one student. But the whole student body is buzzing with speculation about who the busy prankster might be.

Many students, who headed straight for the beach when classes commenced, carried most after it was thought the end-of-year joke was a stroke of genius.

"It's the best prank ever. It certainly should," senior Kasey Frederick, 18, told a local newspaper.

But Principal Mitch Silver, who's allergic to bees, wasn't amused.

"We've contended with various senior pranks over the years but this one could have been dangerous," he fumed.

Granny busted for clobbering cop!

A TINY, [illegible]-YEAR-OLD widow was thrown in the slammer when a cop said she beat on him after a traffic accident!

But Sylvia Mandell insists she never touched the cop, and says he cut her wrist while handcuffing her.

"I did not hurt the officer," Sylvia declared, after spending a night in jail in Naples, Fla. "I'm less than 5 feet tall and I weigh 98 pounds!"

Naples Police Officer Tyrone Davis says he was giving Sylvia a ticket for causing an accident — although Sylvia says the fender bender wasn't her fault.

Officer Davis says she refused to sign the ticket, and hit him. But Sylvia says she was going to sign it — and was just trying to get back her pen, a beloved memento from her late husband.

She cut her wrist, and was taken to a hospital for treatment before going to jail.

"Jail was very stressful," Sylvia said.

DRACULA PLEADS INSANITY

Captured bloodsucker on trial for his 'life'!

Prince Vlad, the blood-slurping [redacted] better [redacted] as Dracula, has been recaptured [redacted] [redacted] weeks [redacted] his dramatic [redacted] from police custody. [redacted] creep may never serve a day in jail — because he's pleading [redacted]ity!

By BRETT ANDERSTON
Weekly World News

INSANE — or crazy like a fox? Prince Vlad may one day walk the streets a free man, in spite of being linked to over 12,000 murders.

A dream team of lawyers hired by the wealthy aristocrat reportedly plan to argue that he suffers from an "irresistible compulsion" to drink [redacted]. And legal experts predict that a lenient court will probably buy it.

Outraged victims rights organizations and advocates for those lives who have been destroyed by vampires are screaming bloody murder — since the aristocrat stands accused of killing more than 12,000 people and "converting" at least 650 others over the centuries.

"This monster has killed more people than Jeffrey Dahmer, Ted Bundy and Charles Manson combined and yet they're going to just let him go free! It's appalling," declares Lori Slivington, director of the Boston Association of Vampire Cult Victims.

But Prince Vlad's five prominent attorneys insist it's their client who's the real victim.

"First of all, the guy really thinks he's Dracula — THE Dracula," said one of the lawyers. "In my book, that tells you right there his elevator doesn't go all the way to the top.

"Secondly, even assuming our client is Dracula, there's substantial evidence that he is unable to control his urge to drink blood and therefore unable to form criminal intent.

"He needs help and understanding — not a stake through the heart."

LORI SLIVINGTEN

The extraordinary legal drama began on October 30 when Boston cops nabbed the ghostly pale, caped mystery man as he attempted to enter a blood bank, as Weekly World News reported.

As the snarling, fanged suspect was handcuffed and whisked off to an unmarked car, he identified himself as Vlad Dracula — the real-life 15th century warlord who inspired the classic horror they'd snared the real Dracula, ending a centuries-long hunt. Most others laughed off the bizarre claim, while officials refused to discuss the case.

But the laughter stopped in early February, when the prisoner escaped from a police building [redacted] — leaving four burly guards unconscious and bleeding from the throat.

On February 13, a SWAT team reportedly recaptured the bloodsucker as he partied at an after-hours club known to be a hangout for weirdos who are into vampirism.

He's now being held at an undisclosed detention center under "ultra-tight security," insiders say.

"Now everyone agrees the guy is a genuine vampire, including doctors that have examined him head to toe," a police source said. "For one thing, he's got no pulse."

Because of the unique nature of his crimes, Prince Vlad should be tried by a secret military tribunal of the type authorized by President Bush, victims' rights advocates say.

"Otherwise, with the all those fast-talking lawyers working for him, Dracula will probably be out on the street in no time — free to kill again," Ms. Slivington warns.

VAMPIRE RAMPAGE? Authorities are trying

Signs that a [redacted]mpire may live in your area!

The vast majority of vampires are pretty harmless and lead their bloodsucking lifestyles in unassuming privacy. There are some, though, that are undeniably creepy, curiously evil or both. According to the book Monsters by John Michael Greer, here are some signs that a vampire may be on the loose in your area:

- Outbreak of several cases of unexplained shootings, arrests and personality flaws, unbelievable by resident psychiatrists — beginning days or weeks after the arrival of a suspected vampire.
- Victims of this sickness report attacks of a "presence" at night.
- The signs of these attacks are not responded by standing water (mirrors, showers, etc.).
- Those who use traditional protective methods, such as garlic, are not attacked.
- The body of a suspected vampire has been buried, not cremated, and has not been exhumed.

THROWING SPITBALLS in class used to get kids a trip to the principal's office — but a 13-year-old boy may get sent to prison for it!

Incredibly, lawyers in Walnut Creek, Calif., put Jeffrey Figueroa on trial for assault and battery — for the heinous crime of launching a spit-drenched glob of paper at a classmate. The spitwad hit the other kid in the eye, and the boy had to have surgery.

Jeffrey says he apologized — but that wasn't good enough for his victim's parents. They called the cops!

Jeffrey was convicted and could get eight years behind bars, according to the Contra Costa County District Attorney's Office. He's on house arrest — grounded by the court — until sentencing.

Jeffrey's dad is outraged. "We do acknowledge that somebody was hurt," he protested. "But there was no intent to do any kind of harm to anybody. It was a school-
